

HUDV 119: Diverse Youth and Families of Color

Examines the changing status of ethnic, racial, and cultural groups of color within the U.S., reviews interdisciplinary theoretical frameworks with applications to and emphasis on risk and resiliency to populations within supportive and non-supportive environments, learn perspectives about youth, families, and communities of color from personal narrative accounts, advocacy organizations, historical, monuments, remembrances and celebratory events.

Credits: 3

Program:

Human Development