

HUDV 148: Research in Human Development

Focuses on quantitative and qualitative approaches in research methods. In this course students will learn how to conduct research in human development across the lifespan. Students will have the opportunity to engage in metacognitive reflexive practice, problem solving, and critical thinking as we address critical issues in research methods and analysis.

Credits: 3

Program:

Human Development